Sir,

Sub: Notification in the University website call for applications under "The Rosa-Luxemburg-Stiftung PhD Fellowship at the Centre for Modern Indian Studies, University of Gottingen.

Ref: Email communication from Klenke, Karin, Coordinator, Centre for Modern Indian Studies, University of Gottingen, Germany dated: 08.12.2022.

With reference to above cited subject, I wish to bring it to your kind notice that, the University of Agricultural Sciences, Bangalore and Gottingen University, Germany have entered into an inter-institutional agreement for exchange of PG students and faculty between the two universities. In pursuance of this agreement, the Rosa-Luxemburg-Stiftung (RLS) and the Center for Modern Indian Studies (CeMIS) at the University of Gottingen invite applications for a jointly-sponsored fellowship to pursue a three year PhD degree beginning in October 2023. The fellowship may be extended for an additional year depending on the progress of the PhD candidate.

In order to give wide publicity about the mobility programme and enable the students to apply for this programme, I request you to make arrangements for display the information in the university website on the mobility (attached with this email). Later this information has to be linked with the website of Gottingen University to facilitate them to contact links with UASB. This may be treated as priority, since the deadline for submission of the applications is on 31st of January, 2023.

I have attached with this the email communication from Klenke, Karin, Coordinator, Centre for Modern Indian Studies, Gottingen University, Germany for your information about the mobilities.

Thanking you

Yours faithfully

(K. B. Umesh)
